

The diagram illustrates the four steps of the 'Four Corners' activity. It shows a long table with four students. In step 1, all students are seated at the table, looking at a book. In step 2, one student stands and points at a book on the table. In step 3, another student stands and points at a book on the table. In step 4, a third student stands and points at a book on the table. A fourth student is shown standing and pointing at a book on the table in a separate diagram to the right.

The diagram illustrates the four steps of a paper recycling process:

- 1. Collection: A person is shown collecting paper scraps from a table.
- 2. Sorting: A person is shown sorting through a large pile of paper scraps.
- 3. Shredding: A person is shown shredding paper scraps into small pieces.
- 4. Recycling: A person is shown recycling the shredded paper into a large container.

The diagram illustrates the four steps of the 'Four corners' game. It shows a sequence of four numbered steps: 1. A child sits on the floor, looking at a book. 2. A child stands on a box. 3. A child stands on a box, reaching up. 4. A child stands on a box, reaching up.

The diagram shows a sequence of four steps in a paper recycling process, numbered 1 through 4:

- 1: A person is shown shredding paper into small pieces on a table.
- 2: A large rectangular vat or tank containing a slurry of paper pulp.
- 3: A person is shown dipping a long, narrow strip of material (likely a screen or filter) into the vat, lifting it to drain the liquid.
- 4: A person is shown standing next to a large rectangular block or sheet of material, possibly a finished paper product or a large sheet of pulp.

The diagram illustrates a four-step process for group decision-making:

- 1. Problem identification: A group of four people is gathered around a table, looking at a document.
- 2. Information gathering: A person is standing and looking at a large vertical display or screen.
- 3. Brainstorming: A person is standing and gesturing towards a table where others are seated, suggesting ideas.
- 4. Decision making: A person is standing and gesturing towards a table where others are seated, indicating a final decision or agreement.